program content

Leadership and Change Management
The ultimate challenge for technical and functional managers is to become the best leaders they can be. To provide them with the tools to address this challenge, this course combines Leadership Skills and Change Management Skills. It covers three areas: Personal Leadership Growth; Leadership Skills and Behavior; and Managing Change.

Program Management: Managing Multiple Projects
Program Management: Managing Multiple Projects aides project managers or individuals in planning, organizing, and managing related projects called programs as well independent projects.

In today's world where success is sometimes defined by speed to market characterized by completing simultaneous tasks, program management is a platform that supports managers in properly and more effectively run development plans.

Learn about both practical and learned guidelines in dealing with various tasks and deliverables in this course.

Project Stakeholder Satisfaction
Actual project management will tell us that stakeholder management is one of the most crucial areas in managing overall project success. This course provides a perspective on stakeholder satisfaction that challenges, or supplements and improve existing practices.

Aligned with the PMBOK® Guide, PMs and non-PMs alike will benefit from this course as it defines Stakeholder Management and satisfaction methods that lead to successful project delivery or a successful initiative. Practical methods and techniques are discussed as well.

program director

Mr. Domingo has two Master's Degrees in Finance and Applied Economics from the University of Southern California, USA and took his Artificial Intelligence Diploma Courses at the MIT Computer Science AI Lab.

Organizational Project Management Maturity Model (OPM3)
While cultures and structures may influence the success rate of initiatives, the level of adoption and maturity of the organization's project management influences how these initiatives are run and are conducted. We must understand that the success of projects is reliant not solely on the skills and capabilities of the working project managers, but is also dependent on the environment where the projects are being executed, that is the organization.

Learn about levels of organizational maturity, see how you can take your organization to the next level, and improve the way your organization can execute initiatives.

objectives

After the course, you will:
1. Enhance your leadership skills;
2. Learn new techniques on how to effectively plan, execute, and manage multiple projects;
